DATABASE SEARCHING

Schedule

- Basics of scientific research
search concept, search terms, search options
- Library catalogs vs. databases
- VPN Client and Shibboleth: login from off-campus
- Urban Studies and Architecture Databases
- E-Books, electronic journals
- Interlibrary loan
- »Wissenschaftliches Arbeiten@Bauhaus«

Search concept

- analyze your topic – Where to begin?
- compile and list words and phrases based on your research subject/research project
- pick the right search instruments
- time management

Research process: Important Questions

- What am I searching for?
- Which are the most important concepts/themes/topics of my subject?
- Which search terms do I choose from my search concept?
- Are there any synonyms or equivalent terms?
- How to search? (formal and/or subject search)
- How to modify my search operation?
- Where do I have to search?
- Which search instruments do I need?

Research Process – Search Concept

Take the time to thoroughly prepare your research project and proceed systematically in your literature search:

- Preparation
analyze your topic / words, phrases / right search instruments
- Research
How to search (formal and subject search) / modify your search
- Evaluation of resources and search results
Too many hits? Too few hits?
- Citation/reference management system/bibliography
Don't waste any results

Boolean operators

Use input fields. Library databases use Boolean operators to combine keywords in database searches. You may have to narrow or expand your search if you do not find the literature you are looking for.

AND	OR	NOT

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Overlapping terms</li> <li>• All search terms</li> <li>• Narrows search</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Joint terms</li> <li>• Either one or the other search term</li> <li>• Advanced search</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Excluded terms</li> <li>• One but not the other search term</li> <li>• Narrows search</li> </ul>

The Boolean Operators use the words AND, OR, NOT to combine keywords and thus broaden or narrow your search results.

Phrase searching narrows your search results by allowing you to define precisely how you want the words to appear. To make sure that the database searches this correctly you can put quotation marks around your search term and force the database to search this as a phrase.

Create a list of search terms

Improve your search operation with truncation

Truncation * ? is used in a database search in order to allow for various endings or beginnings
(*scriptive stands for descriptive and prescriptive, politic? finds politic, politics, political etc.)

Wildcard ? used to replace an unknown character
(wom?n finds woman and women)

Truncation lets you search for a word that could have several endings.

Truncation is very useful when you know one of your search terms has several endings, but all of the variations represent basically the same idea. Using truncation will help you complete your search faster because you will not have to manually type in and search every variation of the word.

This tool is particularly useful for German searches, where there are many different possible adjective endings.

What is the difference between a library online catalog and a database?

- Library catalog: provides information about resources owned by a specific library (books, journals, links to electronic documents)
- Discovery search (BibSearch): you will search within the total stock of the university library as well as 1.6 million articles of journals and books (also possible to search in the holdings of other german libraries)
- Bibliographical databases: used to locate individual articles in known sources like journals, conference proceedings, research reports – independent of a specific location!
- Full text databases: access to full texts

Urban Studies Abstracts

Example of a record:

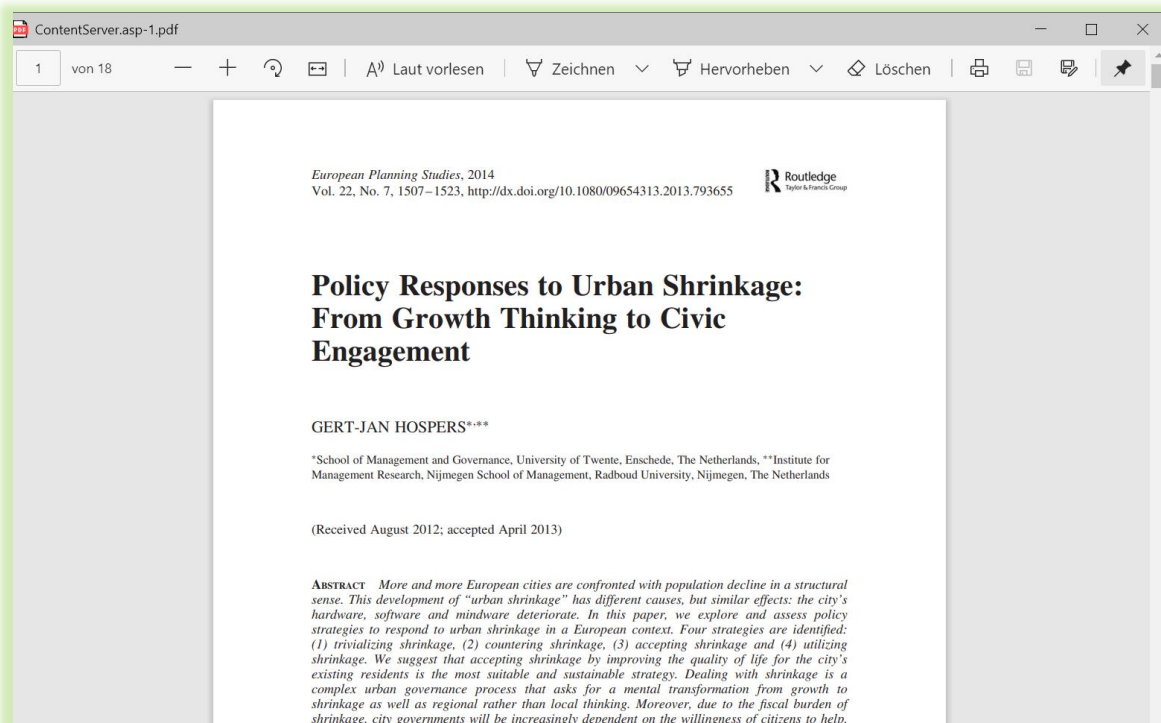

The screenshot shows the EBSCOhost search results page. The search term is "citizen participation". The results list shows 4 of 352 records. The selected record is "Policy Responses to Urban Shrinkage: From Growth Thinking to Civic Engagement." by authors "Gert-Jan van der Kamp, Jan-Jan van der Kamp (AUTHOR) g.j.vanderkamp@univie.nl". The source is "European Planning Studies, Ju2014, Vol. 22 Issue 7, p1507-1523, 17p." The document type is "Article". The subject terms are "DEMOGRAPHIC change", "COMMUNITY involvement", "URBAN planning", "URBAN growth", "URBAN policy", and "SUSTAINABLE development". The geographic terms are "EUROPE". The abstract is: "More and more European cities are confronted with population decline in a structural sense. This development of 'urban shrinkage' has different causes, but similar effects: the city's hardware, software and mindware deteriorate. In this paper, we explore and assess policy strategies to respond to urban shrinkage in a European context. Four strategies are identified, (1) revitalizing shrinkage, (2) countering shrinkage, (3) accepting shrinkage and (4) utilizing shrinkage. We suggest that accepting shrinkage by improving the quality of life for the city's existing residents is the most suitable and sustainable strategy. Dealing with shrinkage is a complex urban governance process that asks for a mental transformation from growth to shrinkage as well as regional rather than local thinking. Moreover, due to the fiscal burden of shrinkage, city governments will be increasingly dependent on the willingness of citizens to help. Civic engagement, however, is not something that can be simply dictated. Therefore we conclude that the authorities of Europe's shrinking cities should first enable their citizens to care for their community before asking them to do so. [ABSTRACT FROM AUTHOR]".

Electronic Journals

»Wissenschaftliches Arbeiten@Bauhaus« - The university-wide online course on academic working and writing

The online course Wissenschaftliches Arbeiten@Bauhaus guides you through the world of academic work and will help you step by step to successfully master the different phases of your individual research. You can go through each individual course section in order or, if you are already in the middle of your work, you can start with your current focus.

The course is meant to give you a perspective on research and academic writing (in English language).
